NYS DEC ACQUISITION OF THE KENDALL TRACT LEADS TO "REAL ACCESS"

By Chuck Parker, NYSCC President

The Kendall Tract property located in the Townships of Redfield and Orwell has long been in private ownership, well managed, and a typical representation of the working forest concept established in the Tug Hill Region.

Through collaborative efforts of the Stave Mill Sportsmen's, New York State Conservation Council, Towns of Orwell and Redfield, Oswego County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, Oswego County Legislature and the NYS DEC, real access for the Kendall Tract has been insured. 3,000 acres acquired by the State will be available to the people of New York State.

The Kendall Tract has established roads that have been used for timber and wildlife management with access for hunting, fishing and trapping. The land is soon to become the property of the people of the State of New York to be managed by the Department of Environmental Conservation with the existing public roadway offering limited access to the 3,000 acres.

Land transfers from private ownership to the State are becoming all too common in New York. The Open Space Plan even identifies properties in which the State would be interested if they were to come up for sale and is considered to be a good system to help preserve our lands and forests. Many from the NYSCC serve on various Regional Open Space Plan committees throughout the state. The process usually involves a land owner who is interested in selling land that falls under the open space plan guidelines. The State cannot readily come up with the money so groups like the Nature Conservancy, or in this case the Conservation Fund Inc., will buy from the land owner with the intent of selling to the State in the future when the State can allocate funds. In the case of the Kendall Tract the land changed hands three times in less than ten years. That transfer had some issues but fortunately a relatively good ending.

Before the transfer the land was leased by the Stave Mill Club which had a hunting camp and exclusive access to nearly 3,000 acres. They knew the land was going to be sold to the State and questioned how to save their clubhouse and how to have access to the lands.

The State needs to be able to manage land after they purchase it, but the issue with the Kendall Tract was that the existing state and town roads bordered little of the property. Nearly five miles of logging trails provided the real access. The common theme we hear these days is the State does not have the resources to maintain these trails (a.k.a. manage these lands). The Stave Mill Club knew that if it wanted to maintain "real access" it would be shared with the public since the lands would be in public ownership; so the issue became keeping the logging trails open. The Stave Mill Club turned to the Oswego County Federation, the New York State Conservation Council, and the local town and county governments. Efforts were combined to get a resolution of support for access presented to the DEC and Oswego County, get petitions signed, and present a case for real access to the DEC and local government officials.

The efforts paid off ... talks were held with DEC regionally and state wide (at quarterly meetings with NYSCC) and dialogues continued. As a result of the efforts of the Council and others the Stave Mill Club got to keep its camp and will be purchasing a 5-acre buffer around it. In the purchase agreement the DEC had the present land owner improve over 2.5 miles of a former logging trail to a solid gravel road. This will lead to another suitable trail for light motor vehicle travel; and the public has an avenue to quality hunting lands with maybe some fishing access.

Representing the Stave Mill Club, Mike Yerdon stated that nothing would have happened if it wasn't for the New York State Conservation Council and the County Federation along with the willingness of the NYS DEC to find a way to get it done.

Rob Davies, NYS DEC Director of Lands and Forests, stated "This land purchase is a great example of using creative partnerships, a priority of DEC Commissioner Seggos, and offers a fine example of what can be done in the future to protect the lands and offer true and immediate public access."

The members of the Council should be proud that our efforts helped in the State's acquisition of land, yielding greater access and opportunity for all sportsmen and women to enjoy the outdoors.

NEW GROUP AT FOREFRONT OF ACCESS ISSUES

By Fred Monroe, Exec. Dir., Adirondack Park Local Government Review Board

A very important new group has been created to advocate for improved access to state lands in the Adirondacks. The group is called Access the Adirondacks and is composed of sportsmen, the NYS Conservation Council, the NYS Snowmobile Association, the NYS Fish and Wildlife Board, the Conservation Fund Advisory Board, Adirondack counties, towns and villages, hunting and fishing and snowmobile clubs, trappers, and chambers of commerce.

Access the Adirondacks envisions itself as a permanent organization dedicated to making the Adirondacks accessible for all ages and abilities. Its current focus is on the APA state land classification package which proposes to classify or reclassify 102 parcels of state lands, with the centerpieces being the Boreas Ponds Tract and the MacIntyre East and West Tracts bordering the High Peaks Wilderness on the South.

Access the Adirondacks has created a website at <http://accessadk.com/>, and members of the group testified in November and December at four hearings in the Adirondacks and four hearings outside the Adirondacks. They pointed out that there are 53 miles of roads on the Boreas Tract, many of which were designed and built for 50-ton log trucks, and that the MacIntyre East and West Tracts have many miles of the same type roads. They also submitted written comments before the December 30, 2016 deadline supporting accessible Wild Forest classification for key portions of the Tracts. The APA will now review the testimony and comments submitted and make a recommendation to the Governor for the classification of these state lands. A decision is expected this spring.

This new group intends to be a strong and effective advocate for access to Adirondack state lands, in opposition to environmental groups that support management of these lands by locking them up and creating barrier gates with locks. Adirondack Local Government Review Board Executive Director Fred Monroe said, "The creation of Access the Adirondacks, with all its members working as a team, is a very significant new development in the continuing debate over classification of state lands and the determination of whether or not they will be accessible to all users, including the old, young and the disabled."

Chuck Parker, President of the NYS Conservation Council, notes that the hearings and written comment period on Wild Forest vs. Wilderness classification is over. Now the APA, DEC, and the Governor's Office will evaluate and make the final decision.

There was great collaborative effort under Access the Adirondacks and its 43 different associates for real access under the State Land Master Plan guidelines; and all allied organizations will continue to monitor the situation.

THE 2017 LEGISLATIVE OUTLOOK

By Bill Gibson, NYSCC Legislative VP

Numerically, the composition of the legislature is virtually unchanged. The Democrats hold over 2/3 of the seats in the Assembly and that body remains dominated by New York City members. 18 Assemblypersons are "new kids." The Senate, as befits the upper house, is more nuanced. Control is more dependent upon negotiation than arithmetic. The Republican Conference (which includes one Democrat who conferences with the Republicans) has the bare minimum of 32 members needed for control. The Independent Democratic Conference, now up to 7 members, is continuing its partnership with the Republicans. This leaves just 24 members in the traditional Democratic Conference. 7 members of the 2017 Senate are "newbies."

The most salient factor at the start of the session is that everyone in the legislature is unhappy with the Governor. November and December were not kind to Andrew Cuomo. He tried to put together a deal for a special session that packaged ethics reform (for the legislature, not the Governor), a legislative pay raise and other goodies. He also bet heavily on Hillary Clinton winning the presidential election. As you may have noticed in the news, none of these came to fruition, leaving promises unfulfilled.

As a result, both parties in both houses are highly displeased and are contemplating a more visible demonstration of the aforesaid displeasure by actually exerting some authority. They are talking about reducing the Governor's spending discretion, more executive oversight hearings, legal challenges to the Governor's authority and -- horror of horrors -- veto overrides. Facing an existing $700 million budget shortfall as well as potential impacts from the Trump administration, it promises to be a stimulating session and the results, as they say, are unpredictable.

On the bright side, there is the potential that the various factions in the legislature, having felt their oats, may realize that mutual benefit rests in cooperation between factions and that cohesion is the best way to confront the Governor's constitutional advantage. This might even result in things actually getting done. Collegiality is of particular interest to us as the progress of many of our issues suffers more from the proverbial "failure to communicate" than from hard-core philosophical differences.

On to the specific issues:

One of the most critical concerns that we face on an ongoing basis is the ability to access and enjoy the outdoors. This is both a regulatory and legislative issue that is constantly evolving as the state acquires new land or reviews the management plans governing current holdings. There is constant pressure from some elements to exclude human activity on as much land as possible on the specious grounds that we must "protect the resource for future generations." They appear completely unaware that climate change and natural evolution are likely to leave little for these generations to admire. We will have to work much harder in the future to insure that management plans include responsible access to the lands that we all own and cherish.

Also ongoing is the issue of the manner of taking big game, and sometimes the taking of small game as well. In the past couple of years, this has revolved around the use of the crossbow for big game; but we expect this to be a broader issue, focused principally on deer but including other species as well. While we always look forward to providing as broad an access to hunters as is consistent with sound game management, a couple of more technical issues are coming to the fore.

First, in addition to the crossbow, the emergence of the air bow and the large bore airgun have forced game managers to try to determine their place in the overall management plan. Second, the need to deal with increasing game populations in more densely inhabited areas is forcing the DEC to evaluate more closely its alternatives with respect to short-range weaponry. We would be much happier if this could be accomplished by regulation rather than by requiring statutory changes.

Another returning issue is the question of free hunting, fishing and/or trapping licenses for various groups. The Council's position has been that the protection of the Conservation Fund is paramount and that all licenses must be funded from sources external to the DEC and its dedicated funds. There were 37 bills related to these licenses in the last session and none of them fully addressed the funding issue. We have some work to do here.

We expect to be active in supporting the establishment of a universal age of twelve for firearms hunting. In conjunction with this effort is legislation to permit the supervised use of firearms on shooting ranges at age ten. This would provide for a training period before going afield. New York is the last state in the country to have a minimum age greater than twelve for firearms hunting or greater than ten for shooting on a range.

Legislation to permit the use of cable restraints for coyote trapping will also be back. We believe that this is a perfect example where the "failure to communicate" problem has led to emotions rather than realities carrying the day. In conjunction with the NYS Trapper's Association, we hope to be able to make some progress this session.

These are just the highlights. We will have the usual panoply of bills on firearms, taxes, environmental issues, ATV/snowmobiles, etc. Keep your legislators' phone numbers and addresses handy – the year has just begun.

2017 CALL FOR RESOLUTIONS

This notice constitutes official call for resolutions for the NYSCC for 2017. All resolutions should be sent to the NYSCC Office by February 1, 2017. The Council office address is 8 East Main Street, Ilion, NY 13357-1899. It would be of great help to the Committee if resolutions were submitted early; any resolutions not in the proper form and received by the February 1 deadline will be rejected.

County and Associate members may submit two resolutions, and Affiliate groups may submit one. Each organization submitting a resolution should investigate its facts thoroughly. Be very specific as to what is being requested along with reference to any law, order, policy or regulation. In addition, the resolution should contain reference to who should perform the action requested and by what means (law change, Department order change, request for action, etc.).

Of statewide significance –

To benefit the sportsmen of New York State

By Stephen Wowelko, Chairman, NYSCC Resolution Committee

The resolution process for 2017 is in full swing. As the February 1 deadline approaches, here are some suggestions to help you along in the process.

All resolutions for consideration through NYSCC should be to establish or change a position or policy for the New York State Conservation Council on a matter concerning issues of state-wide significance.

The title of the resolution should clearly reflect the intent.

In formulating the resolution, the “Whereas” statements should provide the basic facts and reasons for the resolution. The information should be specific, and provide answers to such questions as: Why is the change necessary? What are the facts leading to the final request? It should provide or reference statistics and the effect of the issue. What is the rationale for the “resolved” course of action?

The “Be It Resolved:” should clearly spell out what it is you wish to achieve.

The primary purpose of a resolution is to delineate a position for the New York State Conservation Council on a matter not otherwise covered concerning policies, principles, or precedent of state-wide significance. Resolutions are policy declarations and are not meant to solve local problems unless all other avenues of remedy have been exhausted on the local level.

The final submitted resolution should be polished, well thought out and not a draft work in progress.

The resolutions are to be submitted by the organization’s official councilman to the NYSCC. Resolutions coming from other individuals or directly from Federation clubs will not be accepted. The resolution should contain contact information for the councilman – name, address, phone number and email address. The councilman will be the primary contact for any questions the Resolution Committee may have about the resolution.

Resolutions are due at the NYSCC main office by February 1, 2017. It is preferred that they be sent electronically to nyscc@nyscc.com or if the councilman does not have email access it may be sent on paper through the US Post Office to the following address:

NYSCC

'TWAS THE 22ND ANNUAL YOUTH HUNT, BUT WHO'S COUNTING?

By Bill Conners

The David Wohlbach Memorial Youth Hunt took place at the DEC's Lafayetteville Multiple Use Area in Dutchess County on September 24th. The annual pheasant hunt is held each fall during the state's designated youth hunt weekend – in Region 3 it is the last weekend of the month of September.

The Federation of Dutchess County Fish and Game Clubs, Inc. and several other organizations cooperate to provide kids 12 – 15 years of age with the opportunity to participate in an upland bird hunt. The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation – including the Division of Law Enforcement – supports the effort. As always, the focus was on safety. Each of the 35 youngsters who participated was required to attend a safety briefing prior to going afield. Trained upland bird dogs – along with a handler - were available for each of the kids who did not have a dog of his or her own.

An estimated 140 people came to the hunt this year including the 35 kids and their parents, dog handlers, coordinators, youth volunteers, and other support personnel. It was probably the largest volunteer contingent in the hunt's 22-year history. The state's youth hunts are provided to give youngsters a hunting opportunity in which the focus is on them and their safety. Adults are not allowed to even carry a gun afield when they accompany a youngster during these pre-season hunts. The youth hunts come ahead of the opening of the regular season for pheasant, turkeys, and waterfowl, as well as whitetail deer and bear, to give junior hunters the opportunity to hunt with a mentor at his or her side.

Only youngsters who have completed a Hunter Education Course and are between 12 – 15 years of age may participate in a youth hunt, and they must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. Both the hunter and the adult must wear hunter orange or safety pink when afield and the youth must be under the direct control of the adult.

For complete information about the youth hunts and other hunting and fishing information check the DEC website at: www.dec.ny.gov.

GOT MY FIRST BUCK!

Melissa Baumann is a 31-year-old new hunter who lives in Carmel, NY (Putnam County). She got her hunting license last year and is a member of the Oasis Sportsmen's Club.

Melissa took two does last year and connected with this 8 pointer this season using a .20 gauge shotgun. She got this deer on NYC-DEP lands located in Putnam County in the town of Carmel. An avid sportswoman, Melissa has harvested ducks, squirrels and pheasants and loves to hunt and fish. She also helps the Putnam County Federation with its fish stocking program.

Along with her friend Phil, the pair goes afield as much as they can, using mostly public lands. Their next endeavor is to learn how to trap. Melissa states that her first buck will always be a trophy for her no matter what comes later. Congratulations!

KIDS SCORE DURING COLUMBUS WEEKEND HUNT

By Bill Conners

Monday morning – the last day of the Columbus Weekend Big Game Youth Hunt - dawned cool and clear. If there was a downside to the weather it was the wind gusts of maybe 15 miles per hour or even a little higher on occasion. Deer don't like windy days; it makes them feel vulnerable to predators and whatever. I took a couple of calls from hunters asking for help finding wounded deer. Apparently not all of the deer were too nervous to move.

The wind didn't discourage one young archer from Hyde Park. Up before dawn and in the woods before sun up, she had taken her first deer ever with bow and arrow by 8:45 AM. You gotta love it.

The young lady, 12-year old Hannah Zeleznick, put one well-placed arrow in a big doe that put the animal down quickly. She and her dad recovered it with ease. Her dad is my cousin so I'm particularly proud of her accomplishment. Her uncle and her grandfather both hunt and you can bet they're just as proud as Dad is.

In Orange County, 15-year old Jake Robillard shot a doe Saturday morning. It was his first deer. His mentor Richard Yeaple said that Jake was thrilled to be able to help his family with food.

The annual Columbus weekend youth hunt is a great opportunity for new young hunters. The state legislature recently lowered the minimum age from 14 to 12 years of age for youth hunters to purchase a bowhunting license for big game hunting. While the Columbus Weekend Youth Hunt is over, it does not mean that you can't get a kid out in the woods with you during the regular season.

A LATE MUZZLELOADING HUNT

By Bob Brown

Jason was sitting in his tree stand the last day of the late muzzleloading season in the Adirondacks, hoping to add some venison to his freezer. It was late afternoon and close to sunset when a nice doe entered the woods about 40 yards away.

Quietly cocking the hammer, he squeezed the trigger. BOOM! As the smoke cleared, he saw the doe rise, lunge into tall reeds and disappear. Securing his pack and rifle, he quickly dismounted the ladder and approached the site of his target.

He soon discovered bright frothy spots of blood, the sign of a lung shot. The blood trail was hard to follow, as the sun was quickly fading. Thinking that two searchers might lead to a quick location of his prey, he phoned his friend Scott, the landowner, to join in the search. Together they made some progress, (about 40 more yards) before darkness took over. They flagged the last blood sighting location and retired for the evening.

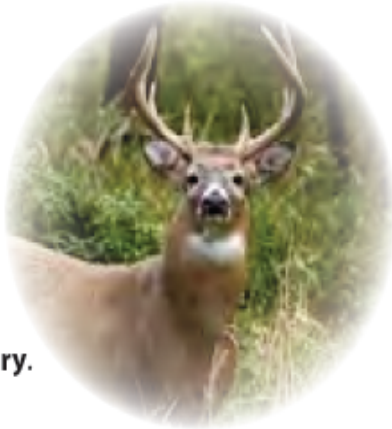

At 6:00 the next morning, before work, the search was resumed. About a hundred yards away they found the doe and took a photo with a cell phone. It was obvious a pack of coyotes found the doe during the night. The amount of devastation to the carcass within a few hours was quite a sight. Perhaps non hunters might understand the point of view of the hunting community on the subject of coyotes if they could have assisted Jason in retrieving his doe. Fawns and turkey eggs are on the coyote menu as well.

HUNTERS CAN HELP END HUNGER!

Through the Venison Donation Program, you can join thousands of New York State hunters and make a commitment to donate some venison to the hungry.

Along with the Food Bank Association of NYS and the Venison Donation Coalition, you can help!

If one out of every 100 deer is donated, the program could easily reach 100,000 pounds of venison to feed the hungry.

Here's how:

- Bring your legally tagged and properly field-dressed deer to the processor at NO COST TO THE HUNTER!
- MORE processors needed, please call us!

Please help end hunger in New York State.
